

Dorm Renovation Launches Redevelopment

The Brick-by-Brick Campus Redevelopment Campaign began just one year ago with a program to carefully utilize all funds for campus renovation and redevelopment with distinct priorities. With the beginning of the 1974-75 school year, the first step of the campus redevelopment has been completed.

The support of the college trustees, alumni, and friends along with unprecedented foundation and corporation participation has allowed Saint Joseph's to complete a massive summer campaign of dormitory renovation. This is the kickoff of the total campus redevelopment plan that will determine the physical appearance of Saint Joseph's for years to come.

New roofing on two dormitories, extensive work in Drexel Hall, massive carpeting and shower renovation and a general brightening of all residence halls highlight the summer work projects.

"We undertook the roofing of Merlini and Seifert Halls in the spring as the first major projects, and we also installed new roofing over the lounge areas of Bennett and Noll Halls," explains Fr. Paul Wellman, Vice-President for Business Affairs. "Tuckpointing, where needed, also was done to these four dormitories."

Drexel Hall received the most summer work of any dormitory. Carpeting in public areas, new doors for student rooms, installation of new aluminum windows and extensive lighting improvements were completed there.

What do you do with 3,500 square yards of carpeting? Fr. Wellman answers, "We have carpeted all public areas, such as hallways and lounges, of all residence halls. This will reduce noise and make the dormitories much more attractive."

Every shower in every residence hall was renovated, with new showers installed and the necessary plumbing work completed. New windows were installed in the shower and wash-room areas of Gallagher and Halas Halls.

All redevelopment work done this summer is limited to the dormitories and the many painting, lighting and acoustical improvement projects where needed contribute to a general brightening of living conditions in the residence halls.

With the completion of the residence hall renovation, in addition to the total repaving of campus roads completed in April, Saint Joseph's is beginning to show fruits of the Brick-by-Brick campaign, says Jerry Gladu. "We have a long list of renovation and remodeling priorities to deal with in the future, but we can safely say we held true to our initial belief that whatever we did in the redevelopment program, the Saint Joseph's College student was the first priority."

College workmen finish one of the major summer projects, the complete reroofing of Merlini Hall. Extensive dormitory repairs, including new roofs on Merlini and Seifert Halls, headline the list of campus redevelopment projects. More photos on page three.

SJC Brick - By - Brick Campaign Receives $100,000 Kresge Grant

The Kresge Foundation of Troy, Mich., has awarded a $100,000 grant toward Phase One of the Saint Joseph's College Redevelopment Plan, it has been announced by Foundation President William H. Baldwin.

"This grant provides Saint Joseph's with a terrific boost, both financially and in terms of morale," says college President Father Charles Banet. "It renews our conviction that private colleges like Saint Joseph's will not only survive, but prosper because there is a widespread belief among Americans in the necessity of private higher education.

"The Kresge Foundation has a solid history of strong support of colleges and universities, and by this generous grant the Foundation is telling Saint Joseph's that it plays a vital role in higher education and deserves such encouragement in these times of financial stress," he adds.

The Kresge grant, as well as support from other foundations, is based upon the initial support provided for the College by its alumni, trustees and friends.

As CONTACT was going to press, the Andersons of Maumee, Ohio, notified Fr. Charles Banet, President of Saint Joseph's College, of a grant from the Anderson Foundation of $50,000 for the redevelopment program.

Foundations participate in those causes they feel to be worthwhile; the old maxim of "nothing succeeds like success" is nowhere more evident than in foundation support. With the Brick-by-Brick Campus Redevelopment program well on the way to its goal, future foundation support becomes more promising than ever. The success of the Brick-by-Brick campaign, which clearly illustrates the overwhelming support of trustees, alumni, and friends of the college, is the keystone to future foundation and corporation proposals.

Bogan, Currie, Lefko Honored At Graduation

Doctor of Laws recipient Dr. William B. Currie receives his academic hood from college President Charles H. Banet. Dr. Currie ranks as the most generous single benefactor in the history of Saint Joseph's.

Saint Joseph's honored three outstanding men with honorary doctor's degrees at its 79th annual commencement exercises. Doctor of laws degrees were conferred on James R. Bogan '43 of Lake Forest, Ill., a college trustee and Vice-President of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith in Chicago. Bogan is a former member of the college's faculty and administration and has served as a member of the Board of Trustees since 1963. Bogan has also served as co-chairman of the annual scholarship dinner.

Dr. William B. Currie, of Indianapolis, a retired orthodontist, was honored for "a decade of beneficent friendship" to the college. Dr. Currie, whose two sons, William and Robert, are Saint Joseph's alumni, is a member of the Board of Trustees.

Very Rev. John M. Lefko, President of Calumet College, was cited for "his dedication to the preservation of Christian higher education for socially and economically deprived youth." Father Lefko, who served as Saint Joseph's Director of Development for ten years, also delivered the commencement address.

Fr. Esser To Be Honored October 5

Amid all the pageantry and hoopla that is part of any Homecoming, there will be a time during Homecoming '74 to say thank you to a quiet man everyone knows. The Department of English will sponsor a buffet lunch Saturday noon in the Priests' Dining Room to honor Fr. Rufus Esser. Fr. Esser recently celebrated his 50th year in teaching, and his colleagues, former students and friends want, in some way, to honor him.

The luncheon will be $2.50 per person and you may use the Homecoming registration form.

22 Returning Lettermen Spark Gridiron Hopes

The tree of costly experience may begin to bear valuable fruit this year at Saint Joseph's, where 22 lettermen return from the 3-7-0 club of 1973 to shape battle plans for 1974. Many underclassmen were pressed into action last fall, and while the relative inexperience showed in the season's results, coach Bill Jennings has good reason to hope many of his troops will perform like poised veterans.

Spring drills produced the answers to several questions, but the varsity's 7-0 win over the Alumni in the annual spring game left other items unsolved. Golden opportunities exist for underclassmen, including this fall's freshmen, to grab key roles in the Pumas' gridiron picture.

The defense showed a bit more expertise in the spring than the offense, but this could be attributed to the improved play on the part of key lettermen who staff the point prevention unit. Bruce Wright (sr.-Gary, Ind.), Joe Kearns (jr.-Chicago, Ill.), and Mike Beatty (jr. - Johnstown, N.Y.) make 75 percent of the rush line monogram winners, while Chuck Naumowich (sr.-Kenosha, Wis.) was a standout at one tackle spot in the spring game. Vets John Kilmartin (sr. - Chicago, Ill.), Kevin McGuire (jr.-Elmhurst, Ill.) and Myron Moriarity (soph.-Martinsville, Ind.) have developed into a nifty linebacking corps, while Jesse Chick (sr.-Chicago, Ill.), Tom Bezold (sr.-Miami, Fla.) and Mike Lubinecky (jr. - Lorain, O.) are leaders in the secondary.

and Mike Karaffa (soph.-Gary, Ind.) provide depth here. Jim Taylor (sr.-Elmont, N.Y.) returns as the bone-crunching full-back, while newcomers like Steve Wilfinger (sr.-Roselle, Ill.), Lynn Maltinsky (jr.-Minster, O.) and Tom Ferguson (soph.-Hammond, Ind.) indicate there'll be balance in the running attack.

"We aren't that big or that physically overwhelming," reports Jennings, "but this team is mentally tough and could jell nicely by the time our season opens. This is the type of team that can do many things well, and although we'll probably be an underdog most of the time, these kids like a challenge and could surprise a few people."

One-on-one drills open fall football practice as the Pumas prepare for their opening home game against Mount Union September 14.

Campus Scenes Of Phase I Summer Projects

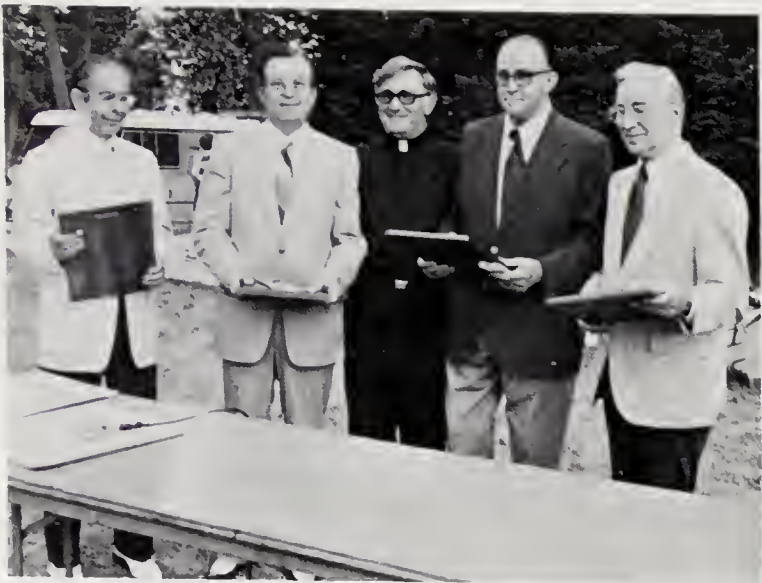

As the story on page one indicates, all nine student dormitories received major renovation and remodeling during the summer.

Above: Drexel Hall, an official Indiana Historical Site, was completely renovated during the summer. Hallways received new floors, bright paint and carpeting, while individual rooms were improved by the addition of new doors and aluminum windows.

Right: A remodeled Bennett lounge typifies summer dormitory renovation. All student lounges were carpeted and painted.

Far Right: In compliance with fire ordinances, a new north exit has been added to the lounge in Merlini Hall. As a final brightening project all corridors in campus dormitories have been repainted.

Four Receive SJC Community Award

Saint Joseph's College named four recipients of the 1974 Schuyler Lee Robinson College Community Award. Rensselaer pharmacist Ralph Fendig, Mayor Emmett W. Eger, the Reverend L. Wayne Smith and Dr. E. Raymond Beaver have been named to receive the annual citation.

The award is presented each year to the person or group of people in the community who have contributed most significantly to the life of the college during the past year. It is named in honor of the first recipient of the award, the late Sky Robinson, former editor of the Rensselaer Republican.

"These people have done much for Saint Joseph's and we are recognizing their service in this way," said Jerry Gladu, vice-president for development, in announcing the awards. Presentation of the citations was made during the college Community Thank You Night on the campus.

Fendig, Smith and Beaver served as honorary chairmen of the Neighbor Fund campaign, which has garnered more than $200,000 for the college during the past 15 months. Eger is a member of the Good Neighbor Steering Committee.

15 Student Biologists, Ma and Pa Mehall Gather Insider's View Of Atlantic Ocean

What happens when you combine one biology professor, his wife and two children with 15 aspiring marine biologists, place them in four passenger cars and a pickup truck, and drive from Rensselaer to Ocean Springs, Miss., for a three-week field trip?

Answer: you come up with a unique, meaningful learning experience that wins new friendships, gains new knowledge and highlights one memorable spring session, if not an entire undergraduate career.

For the fourth time in the past six years, Dr. Andrew Mehall, Chairman of Saint Joseph's Department of Biology, led a field study trip south. Like two previous trips, this one was to the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs, with which Saint Joseph's has established an academic affiliation to markedly improve Collegeville's offerings to marine biologists of the future.

Fifty students, including biology, chemistry, art and geology majors have taken the field trip, which earns the participant four hours of credit. Dr. Mehall cites three factors underscoring the academic value of the trip.

"First, there is a much greater interest in the variety and richness of ocean life today," he explains. "Maybe we can attribute much or part of this to what Jacques Costeau has done on television by giving the average American an ecological awareness of the ocean. He has turned a tourist travelogue into a mini-teaching situation."

Secondly, Dr. Mehall terms the trip a most unique experience for students at a midwestern college. "These students were removed from the cornfield and taken to a whole different environment—the ocean, where 85 percent of the life on this earth can be found. Letting them get their hands into salt water and delving into a myriad of organisms never found in the midwest is an experience that cannot be duplicated anywhere else."

And lastly, Dr. Mehall stresses that the field trip was hardly a fun-in-the-sun operation, since the students worked from 14 to 16 hours per day, six days a week, during the three weeks. The work hours were divided between the ocean and the laboratory.

"This field trip has given these students an experience they may have only encountered previously on the pages of National Geographic," Dr. Mehall reports. "And thanks to our affiliation with the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, a student can now graduate from Saint Joseph's with a concentrate of studies in marine biology. Most marine biology programs are organized on a graduate level, with very little normally done on an undergraduate level."

"By virtue of our affiliation, Saint Joseph's students can experience marine biology throughout their undergraduate years and trim a year off their study in a graduate school of marine biology."

Aside from the academic benefits, the students thoroughly enjoyed the trip like one big family. "Mrs. Mehall did most of the cooking for us, and we students took our turns pulling kitchen duty," recalls biology-chemistry major Cathy Crossland. "And it became normal for the students to call Dr. and Mrs. Mehall 'dad and mom'. We got some funny looks from gas station attendants and other people when we did this, because they must have never seen parents of 17 kids before."

Typical of the intense learning experience was the remark of one student to Dr. Mehall near the end of the trip: "I've lived near the ocean all my life but before I knew it only as a tourist. Now I've learned something about the ocean as a biologist; it's a great experience."

Saint Joseph's Fellows program has now reached 1350 members. It is through generous contributors like the Scholl family of Kalamazoo, Mich., that this number continues to grow. Dr. James Scholl '51, and wife Jean have recently made children Heidi, Mark, Holly, Chris, and Greg Fellows of the college. Pictured with the Scholl family are Fr.
